

IFHE 2012
World Congress
International Federation
for Home Economics

An opportunity not to be missed

Abstracts closing soon – 15 October 2011

IFHE World Congress 2012 will attract up to 2000 delegates from up to 80 different countries.

There will be a diverse range of delegates including academic researchers, leaders of business and industry, educators, students and practitioners from the many fields that link to home economics including health promotion, culinary arts and sciences, textiles and design, curriculum development, social research and family advocacy.

The International Federation for Home Economics (IFHE) and host organisation Home Economics Victoria invite you to submit an abstract for World Congress 2012. A major aim of this event is to enrich the context of contemporary home economics by fostering its links to allied professions.

Formed in 1908, IFHE is an international non-governmental organisation (INGO), having consultative status with the United Nations (ECOSOC, FAO, UNESCO, UNICEF) and with the Council of Europe.

Addressing the overarching theme of Global Wellbeing, thematic streams are:

- Creativity and innovation
- Developing capacities
- Sustainable futures

Key words for abstract submissions include: nutrition, dietetics, health promotion, public health, MDGs, sustainable development, food security, design, textiles, gender, family, consumers, human development, households and shelter. For a full list of key words click here.
